Peter Provenzano is President and Chief Executive Officer of SupplyCore Inc. A graduate of the University of Arizona, Mr. Provenzano has been involved in several entrepreneurial and technology-related ventures. He joined SupplyCore in 1997 and worked in purchasing, operations, sales, and supplier development prior to becoming CEO. Mr. Provenzano has led SupplyCore through various successful technology, logistics, and supply chain undertakings. As a result of his success, Mr. Provenzano has been featured in many articles inside Inc Magazine, Industrial Distribution, AUSA Times, Journal of Property Management, SmartBusiness, and Executive Circle.

Mr. Provenzano led SupplyCore in winning and implementing multiple CONUS and OCONUS DLA MRO Prime Vendor contracts with a total value in excess of $4.6 billion. These contracts include the North Central US, the Southeast US, Europe South of the Alps, and the Pacific region.

In 2004, SupplyCore was awarded the CENTCOM MRO Prime Vendor Contract, which included 23 countries in the Middle East and Northern Africa including, but not limited to, Iraq, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Yemen, Oman, U.A.E., Iran, Bahrain, and Qatar. Mr. Provenzano successfully established vital relationships in this region and formed SupplyCore Middle East, in partnership with a Saudi Arabian company, to provide trucking, warehousing and local purchasing efforts for faster service and hands-on support to locations throughout the region.

Mr. Provenzano effectively guided SupplyCore in winning the FASI-G set-aside contract in 2008 to provide logistics and supply chain management services in supporting the military's land-based vehicle fleets. Mr. Provenzano also played an instrumental role in developing successful programs to support Caterpillar, Boeing, and the Department of Defense.

Under Mr. Provenzano's leadership, SupplyCore grew from a small business with less than ten employees to a company with contracts worth over a quarter of a billion dollars and employing over one hundred and thirty people in locations around the globe. Today, SupplyCore maintains a worldwide network of offices in Japan, Okinawa, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, California, South Carolina, Florida, Ohio, and Georgia. Its headquarters remains located in the heart of Rockford, Illinois, where it was founded.
